

variations between societies may be a cause of normalized magnesium levels in Jordanian population.

Additionally, aging may play an important role in normalizing our results, as it is a well known factor that disturbs magnesium levels in patients as aging decreases dietary intake and is associated with other functional abnormalities that could normalize magnesium levels in our sample.