

- urban regeneration policy, Japan 67
- urban region, multi-modal 73
  - accessibility and sustainability, enhancing 81–85
  - development 82
  - environmental and economic goals 73
  - design challenge 92
  - policy challenge 92
  - research challenge 91–92
- in Randstad
  - future plans 88–91
  - past trends 85–88
- urban solar access, quantification 371
- urban space 15
- urban sprawl 58
- urban success 48
- urban sustainability
  - achieving 25–26
  - changing form 15–16
  - cities to urban sprawl 16–19
  - citizen participation 26–28
  - city, changing character 14
  - commodifying cities 19–24
  - future 28–29
  - social role 14
  - sustaining cities 24–28
  - see also* cities
- urban system
  - key characteristics 77–79
- urban transport, sustainability 80
- Urban Villages 282n
- urbanism
  - clustered cells
    - London 222–222–225
    - Washington 225–226
  - spatial phenomena
    - economic activities 43
    - knowledge workers 43
  - sustainable cells 221
- urbanity
  - design priorities 260–261
  - large plot development, Ranchettes
    - alternatives 252–253
  - pedestrian-oriented
    - alternative 257–258
  - single-family development
    - duplex 255
    - existing conditions 253–254
    - historical precedence 253–254
    - multifamily courtyard 255–257
    - zero-lot line 254
  - sustainable 245
- urbanization 28
  - process 58
  - Kanazawa 319–321
- vertical intensification 155–157
- virtual accessibility 350
- virtual network 339, 342
  - private spaces 344–345
  - privileged spaces 345
  - public spaces 345
- walkable distance 327, 336n
- walkable zones 352–353
- work environment 339
- work pattern
  - emerging 341–342
  - profiles
    - accommodating 349–350
    - cluster of physical hub 343
    - determining 347–349
    - New Economy 340–341
    - virtual network 342–343
  - work environment 339
- work profiles
  - accommodating 349–350
  - physical hubs, cluster of 343
  - virtual network 342–343
- World Trade Center (WTC) 185–186, 189
  - disaster, civic response 186–188
- zero-lot line 254
- Zwarte Madonna* 213