

Figure 5.67 Old Bergen,
traffic calming.

Figure 5.68 Old Bergen,
environmental improvements.

5.69

number of units per given length of infrastructure.³⁰ In assessing the utility of a concept for sustainable development, its aesthetic value is not critical: more important is the concept's compatibility with the organic model of the city.

5.70

Figure 5.69 Old Bergen, environmental improvements.

Figure 5.70 Old Bergen, environmental improvements.

CONCLUSION

The organic metaphor for the city has certain limitations. The city is not a tree.³¹ Cities do not grow, reproduce and heal themselves. The agents for