

you would travel only with great difficulty.
Your Lord is indeed the All-Kind and the Most Merciful.

He also created horses, mules and donkeys, both to ride and for adornment.
And He made yet other creatures about which you know nothing.

God makes the sea subject to ships, so that you may sail on it and draw from its depths tender meat to eat
and [pearls] for jewelry, thereby gaining a living from its bounty.
God made all of this so that you would be grateful.

And it is He who built up unshakable mountains on the earth so it will not tilt with you on it, and rivers and roads for your use as guides and landmarks, just as you use the stars.

Is He who creates such wonders the same as one who does not create?
Would people not remember this?
