

Always remember that your Lord provides to whomever He wills
and in ways that He is most capable.
To His faithful servants,
He is the Infinitely Knowledgable, the All-Seeing.

Do not be tempted in any way to touch the money you hold in trust for orphans until they become adults.

And you should fulfill any contracts you make,
for contracts are a great responsibility.

Be fair when you measure and weigh goods, giving your clients the full and fair quantity
they deserve.

All of these [ethical practices]
are good for you
in the long run.

And do not suddenly follow any ideas
you do not understand,
for later on you may be questioned
as to how carefully you used your hearing, sight, and insight.
