Lukman [the Wise man] advised his son:

'O my son, there is nothing in the heavens or earth,
even as small as a grain of mustard seed
hidden in a rock,
that God cannot bring to light.

Indeed, God is the All-Aware, the Supreme Expert.

O my son, perform your Salah prayers,
encourage what is right, forbid what is wrong,
and be steadfast whenever calamity strikes you.
All these are part of being a good believer.

O my son, do not arrogantly turn your face
away from people,
and do not walk in a conceited manner,
for God does not love
those who are arrogant and conceited.

O my son, do not walk too slowly or too quickly;
and lower your voice,
for loud voices are as bad as the braying of donkeys.'

Whatever is in the heavens and the earth belongs to God,
who is indeed the All-Rich,
and the All-Worthy of praise.

If all the trees on earth were made into pens
and if seven seas and more were made into ink, all of God's words could not be written,
for God's Word will never be exhausted.
God is the All-Mighty, the All-Wise.
God created you all and will resurrect you all as if you are one person.
God is the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing.
